VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

Commencement 1972-Dale Stanway

Good Evening Ladies and Gentlemen:

As I stand here facing you, there are at least a few hundred faces facing me. And those faces are representative of three distinctive generations. Firstly, there are members of my generation - tonight's graduating class. Secondly, there's the generation that taught us - parents and teachers. And there are a few members of the generation which preceded these two, for I detect at least a few proud grandparents in the audience.

And it is to the members of the latter two mentioned generations that I'd like to offer a sincere thanks to.

I have a reason for so doing.

You see, I'm presently a student who is associated with a faculty of Environmental Studies; and one of the "in" things among some students of the environment seems to be to knock the "establishment". According to them the world is pretty fouled up and it is their parents and grandparents with their materialistic goals who caused the foul situation. Well a few weeks ago I left a depressingly pessimistic discussion and trotted off to the library to investigate just what terrible people my parents, teachers and grandparents really were.

It wasn't long before I discovered that those who had materialistically doubled the per capita output, in just the five past decades, had in the same time period increased the average life expectancy by $\frac{1}{3}$ of what it was and had reduced the long working day by 4 hours. It was these people who have given me a healthier world than they found. A world in which I have little fear of typhus, diphtheria, small pox, scarlet fever, measles or mumps, polio or TB. And I decided my environmental pessimists should make note of the fact that it was because some people were both materialistic and self sacrificing that they were in university and that they will work fewer hours, learn more, have more hours of leisure, travel more, and have more chances to fulfill their life's ambitions than did their parents.

So - to the parents, teachers and others who gave us, tonight's graduating class, the chance to be where we are this evening, THANK YOU.

Now, I haven't said we're thrilled with the world; it is overpopulated, it's polluted, there are still wars, and there are all sorts of social ills. But you, the "establishment", have given us a hell of a lot of the tools with which to solve some of these problems, and a fairly good world in which to do just that, solve the problems. And with your continued faith and encouragement some of us will be doctors, lawyers, scientists, and social scientists, and still others of us will just BE. We'll be nothing great, but we will be individuals and we'll each have our place.

King City Secondary meant many different things to many of us. For some of us it was the place where we had our first romance, the time we fell madly in and out of love. It was a place where we studied everything from laudable or laborious Latin to challenging or confusing computer science. It was at King that the thirty thirteens thanked the government for reducing the drinking age and where we learned how to quench our thirsts both during studies and after school. We learned for which classes it was necessary to do homework and for which it wasn't.

And it was just last term that we learned how terribly precious our friendships are. Because some of us suddenly lost two very close friends, Don Ellison and Wayne Cook. They'll be remembered, not for their sudden absence but because of their once very vital and conspicuous presence.

Each year we returned to King, some how anxious to do so. The boys gathering to comment on what the summer had done to "develop" some of the girls and the girls gathering to see what new males had been imported to K. C. S. S.

Each year we complained of our new teachers yet each successive year we felt last year's teachers weren't so bad after all.

We complained of the routine and the impersonality of King and now we've left we have discovered that we still have the same complaint but of a different place.

We learned everything from the passive periphrastic to oxy-redox reactions and some of us became most proficient scholars.

Most of us, however, may never receive any awards for being proficient students. But I think we'll all be rewarded for having been together at King. For, as one of my friends once put it, tonight's graduating class is like a big family. And it's because of the interaction between the serious and the light hearted, between the language and the math students, between the bright and the not so bright of us, that we are a family, a family of learning. As in all families there has been an interchange of ideas and a clashing and mixing of personalities. Perhaps the most important things learned here weren't mathematics or English after all; but rather, what people are, how they relate and how they react.

Children grow, and we the children of this great big family will slowly grow apart, but I doubt that we'll ever quite forget the years we spent together.

Let us hope that amid the noise and haste, in a sometimes frustratingly functional and factual world, that we'll continue to learn not just of books but of PEOPLE.

"Sometimes I have the funny feeling that the students are out to get me . . .

Here I sit
In the nicotine remains of Smoke filled rooms
That sting the eyes and Burn the soul.

Sue Peddie

The old believe everything; the middle-aged suspect everything; the young know everything.

Oscar Wilde

My experience is that as soon as people are old enough to know better, they don't know anything at all.

Oscar Wilde

This year, 1972, has been a year to remember! It has been a year of both good times and bad times.

To Blaine, the Executive, the committees and friends who gave so freely your time and help - Thank-you!

I express my appreciation to Mr. Truax, staff advisor this year; Mr. Bonham, last year's advisor whom we occasionally ran to, and Mr. Fligg, the best in dance consultants.

Being President of KCSS has been a very real learning experience for me. I have enjoyed every aspect of it. For you, the students, I hope that the future will hold good times that will surpass any times you have had in the past.

Sue Diplock

When I was elected VP, I was told by our principal, staff advisors, and even past VPs, that the best part of my new job was when it ended.

This however has not been the case. Certainly there has been problems and financially this year couldn't be termed a booming success.

Despite that however, I would like to say that being VP has been one of the most enriching and memorable experiences of my school life.

Blaine Hobson

Trying to fulfill the great Canadian dream of fame, fortune and better Friday nights.

Brent Orser

As a member of this year's Student Council Executive, I feel I have a very small role in the running of student functions and affairs. It is none the less, a role I have come to enjoy immensely.

Students in our school may sometimes wonder if the Student Council is actually doing anything at all. Remember - the Student Council does all it can with the support it has.

Alone

The day began . . .
the sun rose casting shadows of un-forgotten doom. the clouds crashed in silently and washed out the descending warmth, and filled the sky with darkness.

The day began
I crept about in silence crumpling my mind
again and again with empty thoughts, dragging my head along the ground beside me, attempting to detect some purpose in my being . . .
Night began silently, soon shattered by loneliness, and need. and only in endless sleep, peace is found and so,
the day ended

Judy Horton

I have lived here before,
in the days of ice and snow,
This is why I'm so concerned.

I come back and smell
a world that has burned.

The smell of a world that has burned.

Well maybe,
maybe its only a change in climate.

I can do it,
I just want to see.
So where do I get my ticket
I want a front row seat!

ADMINISTRATION

MR. WILLIAM ECKERSLY

Principal

For a military school, the most important question is the selection of a director and instructors and the adoption of an educational policy.

Mao

MR. JOHN TURCHIN

Vice-Principal

King City Secondary School has built up an enviable reputation during its relatively short history. However, reputations are living things. They must be constantly nourished, or like flowers in a neglected garden they wither and die. It is the responsibility of each student to add to the reputation of the school or our motto of "SEMPER PROGREDIENS", becomes meaningless.

Ask yourselves then "What have I done for my school?" and, most important of all, "What can I do for my school in the future?"

Now and Forever . . .

Crystal ambers fall from the eyes of the rotting dead,
The strong live and the weak are destroyed,
We live in ignorance,
of each other's pride.

Days pass, we fall deeper into our shells of protection,
Deeper into our world of madness,
Come join me there,
I will lead the way.

My escape will lead to triumphant freedom,
locked away in the back of my mind,
I will remain,
now and forever . . .

MISS HEROIN (TAKE ME IN YOUR ARMS)

So now little man, you've grown tired of grass,
LSD, cocaine and hash.
And someone pretending to be a true friend,
said I'll introduce you to Miss Heroin.
Well, honey, before you start fooling with me,
just let me inform you of how it will be,
For I will seduce you and make you my slave.
I've sent men much stronger than you to their grave.

You think you could never become a disgrace,
And end up addicted to poppy seed waste.
So you start inhaling me one afternoon.
You'll take me in your arms very soon
And when I have entered deep in your veins,
The craving will drive nearly you insane.
You'll need lots of money (as you have been told)
For, darling, I'm much more expensive than silver and gold.

You'll swindle your mother, and just for a buck,
You'll turn into something vile and corrupt;
You'll mug and you'll steal for my narcotic charm,
And feel contentment when I'm in your arms.
The day when you realize the monster you've grown,
You'll solemnly promise to leave me alone.
If you think you've got the mystical knack,
Then sweetie, try getting me off your back.

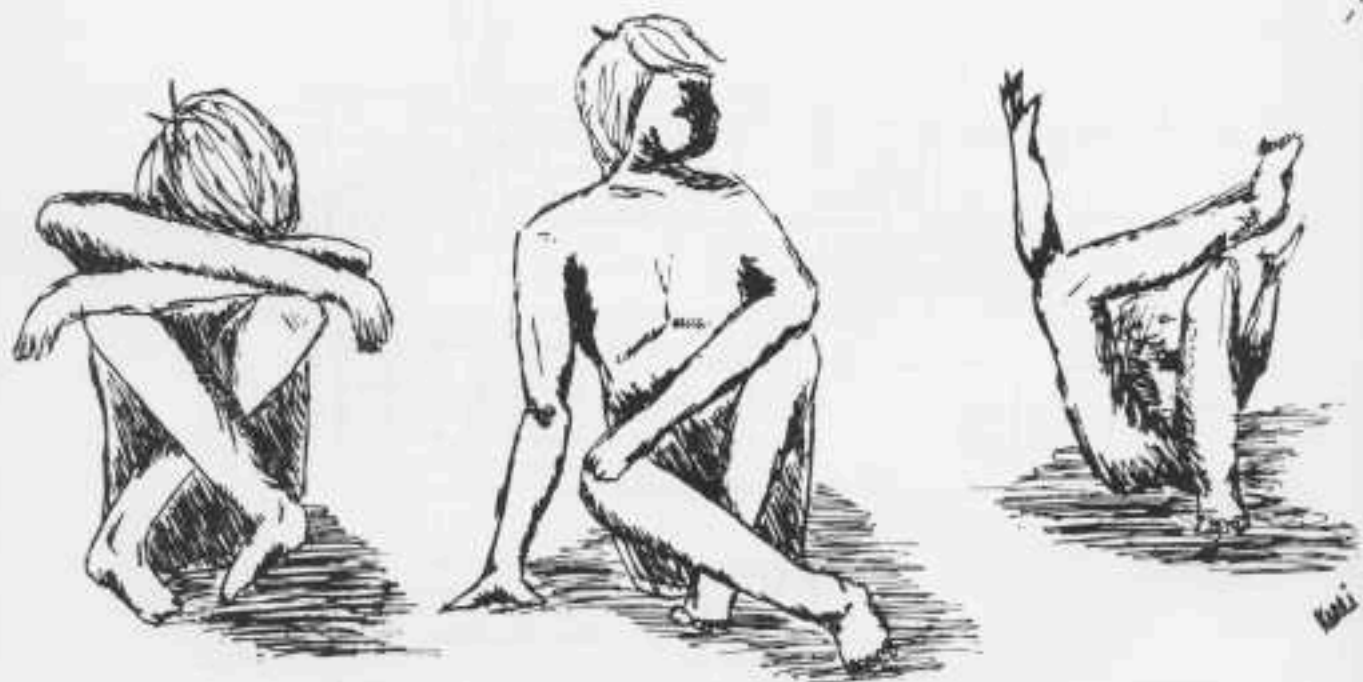

The vomit, the cramps, your gut tied in a knot,
Your jangling nerves scream for just one more shot.
The hot chills, the cold sweats, the withdrawal pains,
Can only be saved by my little white grains.
There's no other way, and there's no need to look,
For deep down inside you know you are hooked.
You'll welcome me back in your arms once again.
And when you return (as I had foretold),
I know you'll give me your body and soul.
You'll give me your morals, your conscience, your heart
And you will be mine until Death do us part.

to find oneself, one must lose oneself first....

innocence belongs to children...

I expected more of you,
But I found out that you too are afraid of society not accepting you.

So I know that you will always lie
To save your own face.

But soon your narrow words
Will become the bars
by which you are prisoned.

Waves of feeling surge through my soul
 My heart pumps a sea
 of sound,
 and I am drowned
 in the meaning of words.
 Memories
 ride the crests,
 like a roaring surf,
 to fade
 into silent thoughts.
 My mind
 is softly raped
 by an infinity of notes,
 and my life
 is but a song.

Cindy Cook

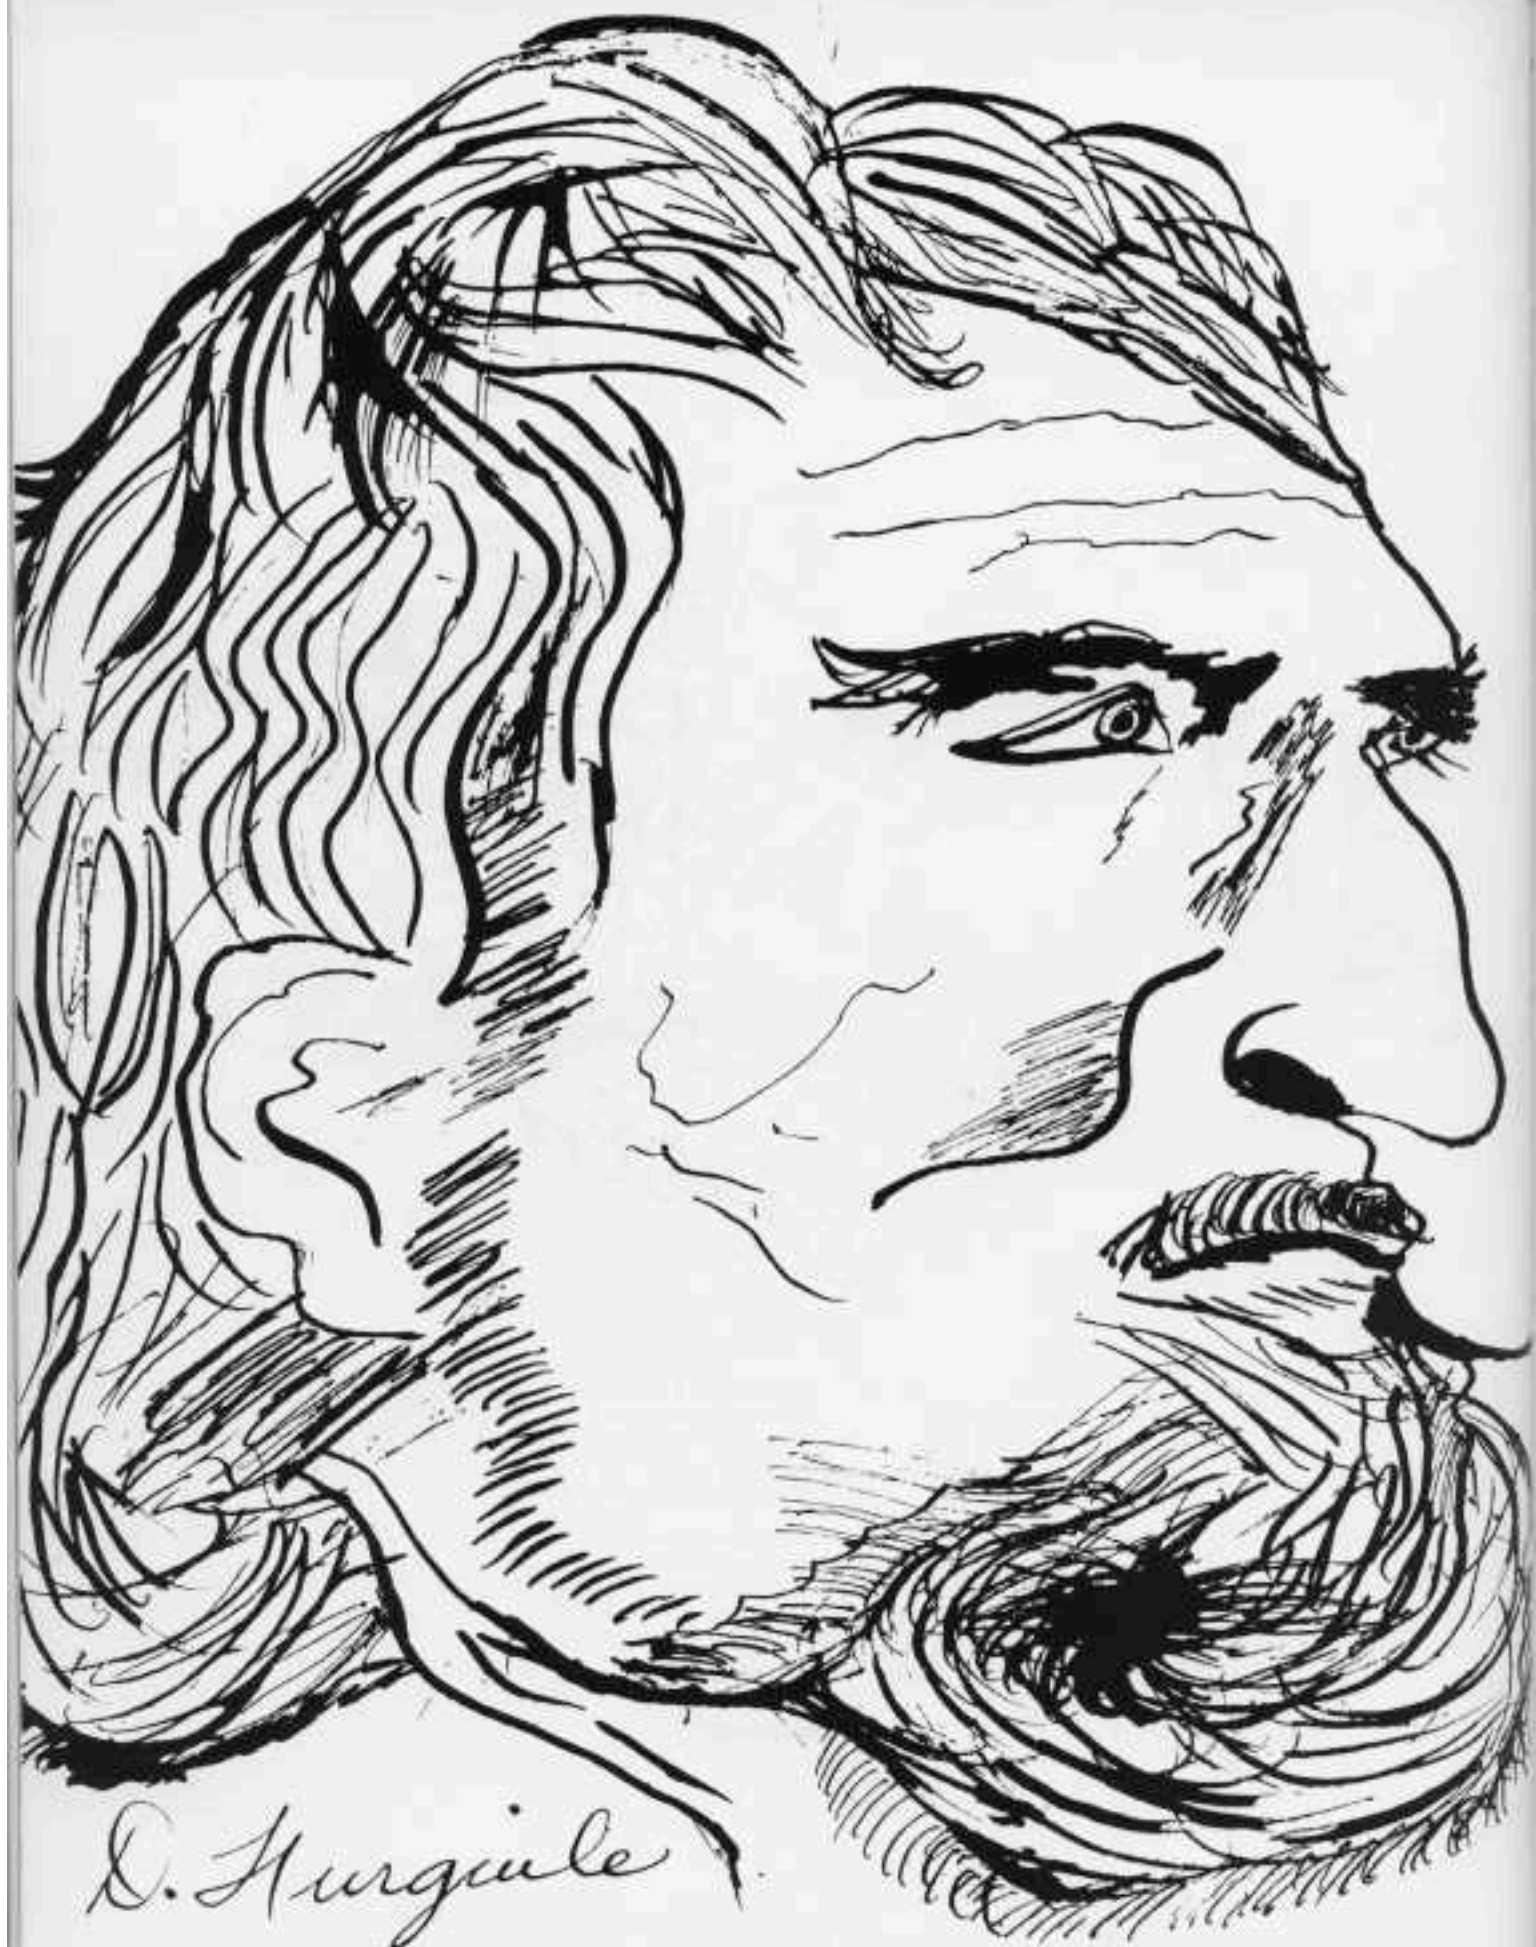

Looking up
 Looking down
 It seemed like, I was all here.

Looking behind
 Looking ahead
 It seemed like, I was all here.

Closing my eyes
 Not looking at all
 It seemed like, I was not here.

LOVE

It's a part of you and a part of me
A part that we all will see,
When we see what we see,
Then knew that we've seen it
We will partake in it.
Not to fortake, nor to retake it, but
To plant it, and reap the harvest,
So that it may blossom in more hearts.

J. R. B.

WHEN LOVE HAS GONE

When love has gone
Life has gone,
Skies change from grey to blue,
Birds cry out their saddened songs
And my life is one dark hue.

When love has gone,
Laughter's gone.
Tears come to my eyes.
Withered leaves all blow away
Into distant skies.

When love has gone,
Summer's gone,
Winter fills my heart,
And freezes it cold and still
Until someone lights a spark.

Sue Brown 11B

Know your own true worth, and you shall not perish.
Reason is your light and your beacon of Truth. Reason is the source of Life.

God has given you Knowledge, so that by its light you may not only worship Him, but also see yourself in your weakness and strength.

Each day look into your conscience and amend your faults; if you fail in this duty you will be untrue to the Knowledge and Reason that are within you.

Keep a watchful eye over yourself as if you were your own enemy; for you cannot learn to govern yourself unless you first learn to govern your own passions, and obey the dictates of your conscience.

Kahlil Gibran

I sit and write
I know not why.
I write of death;
I'm scared to die.
I write of life,
Too hard to live;
It calls for giving,
I've thought to give.
I write of love,
That no one wants.
I write of goodness,
And evil taunts,
I'd write for money,
Or just for pleasure,
Or for the thrill,
Of buried treasure.
I write to fill
My deep desires;
To sell my tears
To prospective buyers.
I write for reasons
I can't explain.
They're many and varied
Like drops of rain,
And though you say
My work is in vain,
I cannot stop . . .
For it's all in this world
That keeps me sane.
