OFF TO A GOOD START

MANAGEMENT

We take this opportunity to thank our Yearbook Committee for the production of this yearbook for the 1985-86 school year. A yearbook with pictures of students, of staff, of the many events of the year, of teams and coaches of clubs and staff advisors will undoubtedly spark many pleasant memories for each of us in the years to come.

To those of you who graduate this year, we wish you every success in your pursuit of other goals in life.

To those of you who will remain at K.C.S.S., we wish you continued success and trust that your involvement in all facets of school life will be meaningful and worthwhile.

King City Secondary School has been and continues to be a great school, a school that hums with excitement and purpose, a school that fosters a caring and supportive atmosphere for those who wish to learn.

May each new day bring for each of us a better appreciation and understanding of the world in which we live.

Take time to laugh, to wonder, to think.
Take time to give, to look up above.
Take time to learn, to smell the fragrance of spring.
Take time to listen and learn of God's love.

BEST WISHES,

T.C. Fawcett

COMMENCEMENT

On Friday November 1, 1985, K.C.S.S welcomed back last year's grade twelve and thirteen classes for its annual Commencement Exercises. After a few speeches by school administrators and local politicians, the graduates received their various diplomas and awards. Special mention goes to the following individuals for their outstanding achievement in academics: Walter Kenedi, Joanne Steel, and Andrew McDougall. Following the awards, the audience had the pleasure of hearing this year's valedictorian, Jeff Menckel, deliver his address. The graduates wish to thank Mrs. Beatty, Mrs. Campoli, and all the other staff and students who contributed to make this year's commencement the wonderful time it was.

GRADE 12

The Sunset Will Never Die

I find the golden moment
just as light will pass away, reflections on the river
then the image starts to fade reach for something I can't hold,
but the memory remains,
time runs with the water
but nature's treasure stays.
He watches the last sunrise dry tears the old man cries
but he smiles and laughs
a twinkle in his eyes,
the sunset never dies

-Jamie Rossiter

The ritual continued as the grade 12 students packed up their knapsacks and rolled up their sleeping bags ready for the 1985 canoe trip.

Sunny days and starry nights were more than had been hoped for. Memorable moments created in the wilderness, with only a flash of civilization from Mr. Cronse's Granola commercials, will always be something to reminisce about. Along with feeding tree frogs to Carter snakes, eating sticky spaghetti, listening to Miss (super civilized) Tomaselli whine, and the midnight stroll, singing songs for four hours around the campfire was a great highlight of the trip. Besides Mike and Shelley, who spent the entire 3 days cursing (nature related) verbs at each other, everyone managed to get along like one big happy family.

The trip just wouldn't have been the same without Mr. (ask-me-anything-about-Bob-Marley) Harris, Lorie's pancakes, John's Eddie Murphy impressions, and of course....the FAT jokes!!!!

All in all, the '85 canoe trip was a great success. There is only one way to sum up those unforgettable expressions. "Guys, I know I'm being a ----- but... Ahooogha... just 5 more minutes, we've got to kick axe."

Tears of Rain

The moon saw the sea
And fell in love
It cried cold tears
Which rained from above
For the sea saw naught
And would not explain
Why she sought for cause
The moon such pain
The moon cried,
"Pity me, heal this sore
Which surrounds my heart
Made of stone cold ore
Touch me once, just once
And then no more
But the sea roared on
And still refrain
While the moon above,
Cried tears of rain.

LOSS OF BEAUTY

Leaving the city I ventured to the forest
I had to get away and get a rest
It was a new land to me
A land I had forgotten to see.
There were flowers blooming everywhere
I picked some and put them in my hair.
I sat by a stream on a large rock
I listened to the birds and heard them talk.
Everything was green and seemed so new
The grass and leaves shone in the morning dew
As I kept walking closer to the city
The forest changed and I felt pity.
The ground shone from tins and cans
This wasn't nature's it was man's
The stream was blocked and filled with junk
I struggled to clear it but my hopes sunk.
The flowers were squashed where people had been
I tried to remember the other forest I had seen.
I left the forest sadder than when I came
The beauty was dying and we were to blame.

THE VIDEO BLUES

In our house the main event is something no one could resent.
Except for maybe my mother and father
but, with them we needn't bother.
We have the most beloved thing,
the greatest thing technology could bring,
and now with it we can see
Miami Vice or M.T.V.
We sit and lie around all day,
not listening to what our parents say.
At four o'clock it is now time for Toronto Rocks,
the video on now is the "Boy in the Box" but, what happens when two shows are on, and then?
THEN! You need a VCR!!!
Figuring out the buttons is so much fun.
Rewinding and pausing till the day is done.
"The Young and the Restless" you'll never miss!
Nor on "Dynasty" Krystle's famous kiss.
The only problem you might find,
is where you left that tape behind.
The special one with Jeannie Becker,
talking with the ever gorgeous John Taylor.
But what? When just cable is just boring, and Pay TV just isn't the thing.
What do you get when more channels is your wish?
Why everyone knows you need a satellite dish!!!

-Tamara J Mabley

I WISH.....

I wish that we never disagreed.
I wish that they weren't sisters.
I wish that she didn't always fight with her family.
I wish that we didn't have to grow up.
I wish that we could be better friends again.
I wish that we had never changed.

-A once close friend

RUBY EYE OF DEATH-BED GLOW

Evening wolf padded his way through a fern-filling field, tasting a yellow eye
in and out of the dusk,
a lone figure worn
down by the amplitude of time, Sad howl fills hollow air-removing a stillness between ruby haze and
needled pines,
Howl hung in the air
as did cold breath,
faint forewarning
of untimely death,
wolf strides on,
sun turns loon cries
sky furrows a dark brow Wolf whimpers a quiet retreat,
tarred teeth,
chipped, lost
Rising moon settles
unto its proper place,
wolf picks up his pace,
Pine perfume strings
about a twitching nose,
Ruby sun glistens
a wet sheen as it slips under
green-wood fringe,
A pained sigh
emanates from deep within wolf's throat, Lying down on
lofty ground,
wolf opens one
amber eye,
sheds a soft tear,
then dies.

Sun disappeared
as the moon beamed

THE 23RD PSALM FOR THE CROSS COUNTRY TEAM

The Lord is my shepherd,
I shall not want to be defeated,
He maketh me lie down in green pastures in exhaustion after I finish,
He leadeth me beside the still waters (of the pond by the hill)
He restoreth my energy (after the hill)
He guideth me in the paths of Vivian Forest,
For Mr. Craig's sake

Yea, though I walk through the Horseshoe Valley's shadow of death (known as the "major uphill")
I fear no sidestich; for Thou art with me.

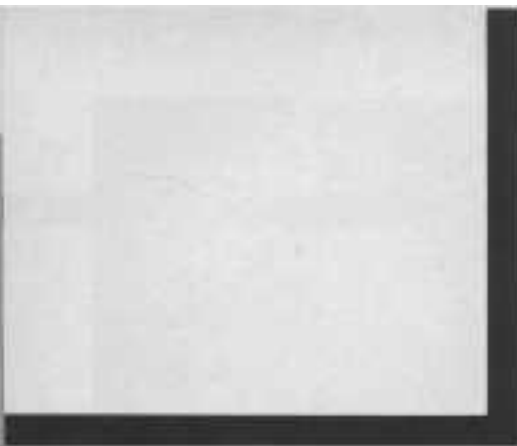

Thy tensor bandage and thy rub A-5 3-5 they comfort me,
Thou dost prepare a chance to win in the presence of nine enemies (characterized by Stouffville's purple shorts)
Thou hast annointed my head with psychological strategies,
My runneth is over,
Surely shinsplints and that runner from Orillia will follow me all the days of my life,
And I will dwell in the outhouse at Vivian Forest forever.

-Caron Ryland

Metamorphosis

The eyes reached out
To clasp the heart
Each leaping feat
Gave a thrilling start
But the eye turned cold
As cold as stone
And the once glad heart
Was left quite alone
It pined, it cried
It began to ache
And once glad heart
It began to break
But the eyes came back
Full of sorrow and pain
And the once glad heart
For you see, when left to Suffer all alone,
A once glad heart can Turn to cold hard stone.

CHRISTMAS

'T WAS THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

'T was the night before Christmas, when all through my household,
There was a big party, occurring in full fold.

The beer was piled up in the kitchen with care,
In hope that another case soon would be there.

My parents were safely on tour in France,
So there was plenty of room to get down and dance.

The stereo was blaring, the party at its height,
This bash was sure to continue all night.

When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
We rushed from the dancefloor to see what was the matter.

Away to the windows I flew like a flash,
Quickly closing the shutters and throwing down the cash.

My parents home early I expected to see,
I told everyone to pack up and get ready to flee.

It wasn't my parents I am happy to say,
But eight tiny reindeer and a miniature sleigh.

With a little old driver so lively and quick,
I know in a moment it must be St. Nick.

More rapid than fast Eddie his coursers they came,
And he whistled and shouted and called them by name.

Now Carson, now Campbell, now Johnson, now Wright,
On Gould, on Realy, on Fawcett, on Bright.

Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound,
We were all so astonished, no one uttered a sound.

I thought I was hallucinating because of my drinking,
It had gone to my head and altered my thinking.

When he saw the great party it did not take him long,
To throw down his toys and join in the song.

Impatiently waiting we could hear the reindeer,
While Santa sat down and drank quickly four beer.

The stump of a pine he held tight in his teeth,
The smoke made our heads circle round like a wreath.

ASSEMBLY

The beard on his chin was as white as the snow,
How he kept standing, there was no way to know.

He was downing the bottles of whiskey and rye,
Mrs. Claus was not present, there was no watchful eye.

His eyes how they twinkled, his dimples, how merry,
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry.

It was cold outside and starting to snow,
But inside it was warm with St. Nick on the go.

His broad smiling face and round little belly,
Shook as he break danced, like a bowl full of jelly.

He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf,
Making passes at girls despite himself.

A wink of his eye, and a twist of his head,
Soon all the girls knew there was something to dread.

St. Nick is really wild, a real woman's man,
He uses his sleigh instead of a van.

He was really getting rowdy, and despite all the stares,
He was dancing on table tops, bartops, and chairs.

The life of the party we all did agree,
Such a party animal one rarely did see.

When all of our resources came to a diminish,
We went to my parents cupboard to see what we could finish.

After a time we all became quite mellow,
Even the red and white dressed little fellow.

He tried to stuff the stockings but with no success,
"I'm really wasted," he then did confess.

By the end of the night, his reindeer were dead,
"They're frozen to the roof, by golly," he said.

When everyone had finally passed out on the floor,
Santa picked up some empties and headed for the door.

As down in the cold snow he fell with a plunk,
I yelled, "Call him a cabbie, don't drive when your drunk."

An essay of national importance.

"Canada...? What the bloody blazes is a Canada...?"

The world traveller stood at the dusty counter of the small travel agent, his expensive gold rings shining in the window's light and accenting his expensive silk suit. Recently back from a rather brisk and somewhat depressing swing through Hong Kong, he felt an urge to go somewhere new, a vast unknown wilderness where lurked only the brave, a seldom heard-of corner of the globe, deeper than the depths of African jungles, where death was at hand as an omnipresent veil. Then the agent suggested going to "a Canada".

"A what...?"

"Why Canada, of course! Surely you jest to tell me that you have never been to Canada!" jeered the salesman.

The acclaimed traveller, trying to cover for his slight error, decided to bluff: "Why of course I've been to Canada! I thought you said Cadana! Besides, "(here he took the fatal step...) "Who cares about a noddily little tribe calling themselves 'Canada' anyway. Why that pinprick is so inconspicuous that...."

It is about now that the salesman (who, it is interesting to note, was born and actually grew up in a small town in Newfoundland) decided to close the shop for a rather long lunch break, during which he started laughing and didn't stop until his sides literally did split open, causing a rather untimely death (I didn't say this would be all fun, did I?). But that is another story. Our current story is not over yet, either, for that flashy world traveller would soon become interested in a quasi-political career, and would become famous under the name of "Brian Mulroney". I need not continue.

THOUGHTS ON OUR NATION

Generally, Canada is the country that seems tailored to me. It is at peace between all of the world's superpowers and gains as much from other countries as it does from within its own boundaries. When I think of Canada I can think of relative peace, and see the central position it holds in the world affairs.

Probably my favorite place in the whole of our country is at our cottage, in the middle of Lake Muskoka. It appeals to me as it symbolizes in its pure essence of nature many of the glorious beauties that I, as a devoted Canadian, have grown to appreciate. Among this sizeable list are: the beauty of autumn's leaf-painted artwork, and the soft misty dew that ghosts across still, faultless lake of early dawn. I am drawn to the laughing waves that whip like a stubborn child upon the grey shore, then draw back, as if in fear of its own natural beauty, only to recollect and strike again. I could continue forever (or 'till 250 words, whichever comes first) about the wonders I have witnessed.

CLOSING COMMENTS

I have actually mentioned little, I will admit, about the "Canada" that the media endlessly continues to describe. When I am thinking about "my Canada", I have little concern for the Canadian Dollar, or the TSE (just as long as you keep your hands off my IBM and Bell stocks!) I generally look to the beautiful Canada that words can not describe, that which exists without tensions nor conflicts. A Canada that exists.....only in the Twilight Zone.

LOCKERS

K.C.S.S.

Happy 25th Anniversary to KCSS, with more activities this year than ever before.

This year began as the Gr. 13 lockers were moved and the Gr. 13 found a new home in the library, with muffins for the morning munchies and carpet under their feet.

On initiation day, from this hall emerged an odd group, wearing hard hats and steel toed boots. Together the 9s and 13s worked and painted on the chain gang. Afterwards the 13s steelted down to play euchre in the halls.

Along the same idea of changes, KCSS experienced a rebirth of spirit. A group of students and teachers saw a vision of a school newspaper and began to make dreams into reality. The spirit continued through Christmas, where at the Christmas assembly the elves journeyed to California, and Springsteen spotted Santa flying to a party.

Throughout the year, the spirit was supported by the acrobatic group of cheerleaders, who led several pep rallies in recognition of all our sports and teams. And no one deserved more recognition than our athletes, who shone throughout the year. In the fall, the junior football team battled their way into the Georgian Bay Finals, but lost to Collingwood. Likewise, the senior Lions basketball team were invited to play in the Georgian Bay Championships, where they lost by 2pts. to Orillia, the tournament champions. Training the entire year, the pole vaulting team developed a winning reputation.

REPORT

Mike Schafer Captured KCSS' first gold medal at OFFSA competition, and Marco Marcuzzi placed first in the Ontario Track and Field championship.

Students also had a chance to express their artistic talents during the year. King organized its first Airband Contest, and opened the doors to the likes of Bryan Adams, Tina Turner, Heart, and the Flash of Guitars.

The actors in the school rehearsed for months in preparation for the comedy production of Don't Drink The Water.

When all the work and activities became a burden, students escaped on a variety of exotic trips including:

.....The Gr. 12 and 13 canoe experiences in Ontario's wild north.

.....The American history trip to Washington D.C.

.....A trip to Italy for the March Break.

.....And the French ski excursion to St. Donat, Quebec.

Each trip was a unique experience, to be remembered all one's life.

Outside of KCSS, the world was busy too!!!

.....Expo fever was catching, and the senior concert band was invited to visit the world and play at Expo '86 in Vancouver.

..... The world came closer together as they expressed sympathy over the tragedy of the Space Shuttle Challenger.

.....And people rocked to Amadeus as they flocked to see the Colour Purple, Out of Africa, and Witness.

Overall, this was a fantastic year. But it also is a celebration of the past 25 years, with the reunion on April 16, 17, 18 1986 is the icing, which completes a long list of great years, each sharing its special moments and golden memories. Good Luck to everyone in the future and remember the 25 year past.

This year the King City Jr. Invader Football team faced many difficulties. There were many first year players who gained much experience. Through determination and high morale, the invaders fought to win seven out of eight season games with the following results.

King City over Huron Heights	15-6
Markham over King City	14-6
King City over Williams	16-2
King City over Newmarket	6-0
King City over Huron Heights	19-0
King City over Markham	13-6
King City over Williams	20-6
King City over Newmarket	23-0

The season began with the first four games played away from the home, but despite the hostile crowds they proved to be fairly successful with King's only loss going to Markham. The teams captain Rob Bracken, Claudio Conti, and Dave Haggith were a driving force behind the invaders defence, while Frank Cafaro with eight touchdowns, and Claudio Corazza with five touchdowns were a key behind the offence.

Because of the reversible offence behind quarter-backs Steve Bennet and Mike Osborne, the invaders often left opposing defence dis-oriented. The superb season allowed the team to advance into first place in the playoffs. In the final playoff game against the Markham Marauders, or the York Region Championship, King defeated Markham to win their second consecutive championship. They then advanced to the Georgian Bay Finals, held at King City and lost a tough game in very poor weather conditions 26-7 to Collingwood.
